PERSONAL SUMMARY

I am a confident and creative artist with an MFA degree in Studio Art with a special interest in drawing. My journey in the realm of visual arts began with a bachelor's degree in graphic design, setting the stage for a multifaceted career in art and design. Over the years, I have actively engaged in diverse projects focused on visual illustrations for urban development, showcasing my ability to translate conceptual ideas into compelling visual narratives. Having held an adjunct professor position at the School of Visual Art and Design at the University of South Carolina, I have honed my skills in teaching foundational courses and Studio Art, and I continue my journey as a lab instructor in the College of Visual Art and Design at the University of North Texas. I am a hard-working and detail-oriented person with extensive training and interest in painting, drawing, printmaking, and photography using different mediums and techniques. Also, I have professional-level skills in Photoshop, InDesign, Illustrator, and Corel Draw software. Being an ambitious individual situated in Dallas, Texas, my objective is to sustain my career as an independent artist and academic instructor.
